Track 1. Brief Introduction to the Russian Language:

Today Russian is still spoken by the overwhelming majority of people in the former Soviet Union. It will be useful to learn a few phrases of courtesy, for example: to express initial greetings, to ask about well-being of others, to introduce oneself etc.

The Russian language belongs to the Slavic group of the Indo-European language family and is considered one of the most important world languages. Russian was the official state language of the Soviet Union. After the disintegration of the USSR, Russian remains the state language of Russia and it is still the language of about 200 million people, including 16 million in Kazakhstan. Although Kazakh is the state language of Kazakhstan, Russian is the predominant language spoken.

Russian belongs to the inflectional languages (i.e. languages in which words have endings). A Russian word can have many different forms, and therefore not every word encountered in a text can be found in dictionaries. Russian words that have endings are entered in the dictionaries in a definite form. The definite form for nouns is the Nominative case singular, for adjectives it is the Nominative case singular masculine, and for verbs – the infinitive. Adverbs, prepositions and conjunctions are invariable.

Characteristic features of the Russian language are:

- Genders of the nouns and adjectives (masculine, feminine or neuter)
- Declension of the nouns, pronouns, adjectives, and numerals
- Conjugation of the verbs
- Aspect of the verbs
- Absence of articles
- Shift of stress

The Russian alphabet is comprised of 33 letters.

Stress, in Russian, can fall on any syllable in a word. One word has only one stressed syllable which is longer than others. Usually, the stress is indicated in dictionaries.

Verbs: there are three tenses: the present, the past, and the future. All verbs also have an aspect – imperfect and perfect.

Most local people are delighted and flattered by foreigners who attempt to speak their language. Your efforts will be generously rewarded.

It will be useful to learn a few phrases of courtesy, for example: to express initial greetings, to ask about well-being of others, to introduce oneself etc.
